— AND MAKE THEIR TOWN,
CITY OR NEIGHBORHOOD A
LIFELONG HOME

By 2030, one out of every five people in the United States will be age 65 or over. AARP surveys consistently find that the vast majority of the nation's older adults don't want to relocate from their homes and communities.

That's why AARP is helping towns, cities, counties, rural areas, and even entire states to become more livable for people of all ages.

Getting There: Age-Friendly Transportation

Access to transportation is essential to daily life whether it's getting to the store, doctor's appointments, visiting friends, or simply aging in place. Age-Friendly communities have affordable, safe and a variety of transportation options. Learn about trends, barriers to access, policy opportunities, and innovations from transportation thought leaders.
